Customer Reviews

Excellent map reaching from Dublin to cover all of Northern Ireland. There are also Ireland West, Ireland South, and Ireland East ordnance survey maps (which together cover all of Ireland), and we have used those successfully on several previous trips to Ireland. Our GPS showed some local lanes that were not on these maps, but I would not recommend driving on tertiary roads in any foreign country, and in Ireland those rural lanes were narrow, twisty, and with unpredictable pavement and unexpected obstacles like herds of sheep roaming freely and a young woman in the middle of the road pushing a baby carriage. But you should really meet the Irish people, who are unique and remarkably hospitable, at least to Yanks. So if you get a chance, you should drive around there a bit, have lunch in an Irish pub, and stay in one of the many Bed and Breakfast establishments where you can chat with the proprietors. Have fun!

Looks great. I will see how it works out in September.

See my review of Ireland Holiday Map - East. The comments there apply to the North, West and South also.
