having watched zig interact successfully with kids, i was pleased to be able to see his new book as a former teacher i was able to appreciate the detailed lesson plans and suggestions for involving all aspects of curriculum i could even follow them myself, and i am by no means a percussionist the band and chorus directors with whom i have shared this book have been excited by it and look forward to seeing zig in person it is great fun for the classroom, lending itself to further research into various customs and cultures and helpful for all levels of music instructors keep on !

This book is a must for Related Arts Teachers in Kentucky. Zig combines the music and culture in a way that students are spellbound. The rhythm tracks on the CD have fabulous sound. The book covers two of the core content cultures we must study in KY, Native American and West African. Zig has made teaching fun for both students and teachers.

My students (K-5) love Mr. Wajler's play-along tracks. The warm-up Call & Response rhythms are a wonderful review of various note values that we have been working on in the classroom. I would have to say that my student's favorite song to play-along with is a toss up between 'Far East Medley' and 'America Rocks'. As a surprise for our students we brought Mr. Wajler's, Hands On with Zig performance to our school. After seeing the instruments and hearing the music included in his book in person my students want a return visit. Even more so, they are now making reference from the live performance to lessons from the classroom. Thanks ZIG!
